It gives me immense pleasure in sharing my thoughts in this first issue of An Official Publication of Conservative Dentistry and Endodontics Association of Tamil Nadu (CEAT)—Journal of Operative Dentistry and Endodontics (JODE). Conservative Dentistry and Endodontics Association of Tamil Nadu was established in the year 2013, with the membership of renowned stalwarts in the field of Conservative Dentistry and Endodontics from Tamil Nadu. The proposal for commencing An Official Publication of CEAT was put forward in the year 2015. Within a short span, the journal is all geared up for its first issue.

The journal will serve as an excellent pedestal for sharing all the scientific knowledge, research work and unique cases encountered by specialists, postgraduate students and academicians in the sphere of dentistry. First issue of JODE has invited review articles from renowned national and international authors. The contents cover various aspects of remineralization, revascularization, endodontic treatment outcomes, endo-perio lesions, tips in scientific publications and case reports.

It is a peer-reviewed journal and we aim to get it indexed in PubMed soon. The sole purpose of the journal is to elevate the scientific knowledge originating in our field to international standards. The journal will be published biannually, i.e. Jan-Jun and Jul-Dec, with strict criteria pertaining to the quality of the scientific work. The authors can submit their thoughtful research work in form of manuscripts online at the journal's website www.jodend.com for publication, and the published articles can be accessed from the archival section of the website.

I hereby welcome all the specialists in our field to utilize this opportunity and provide their unique case reports, innovative techniques, scientific data and research works to raise the standards of our journal to global level.

At this juncture, I thank CEAT for giving me this opportunity to voice my thoughts in the very first issue of the journal.
